With Wife of Man Acquitted
On Charge of Attacking
Her

FEARED TO RETURN

Steps Will Be Taken To Find
New Home for Girl,
Mary Tuzzio

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 21.—Thirteen-year-old Mary Tuzzio, missing since Tuesday morning when she left home for school, was located at Coopersburg, near Bethlehem, at the home of Mrs. Mabel McKinney, whose husband was last week acquitted by a Bucks County jury on a charge of attacking the girl.

Mrs. McKinney wrote a letter to Grant Myers, head keeper of the Bucks County jail, asking him to send probation officers for the girl, who said she was afraid to return home for fear her father would punish her.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller this afternoon issued a court order for the girl's return, and authorities said efforts will be made to find her another home. It was not learned how the girl found her way to the home of Mrs. McKinney who is estranged from her husband.

LANGHORNE, Sept. 21.—Fear is expressed for the whereabouts of Mary Tuzzio, 13, daughter of Chester Tuzzio, who has been missing since she left for school Tuesday morning. The absence of the child was reported by her father to state police at the Morrisville barracks.

It is stated that the girl left home on the Langhorne-Yardley Road, Tuesday at eight a. m., enroute to school at Woodbourne. She failed to return home at the usual hour Tuesday afternoon, and a search was started. It was learned she had not gone to the home of any relative, and when notified that the girl was missing, state police immediately flashed teletype messages giving a description of the child.

It is stated that in July the girl figured in a case, which it is thought by the father, might have some bearing on her disappearance. A resident of Coopersburg, William McKinney, employed at the Tuzzio farm, was arrested on a serious charge in connection with the child. The man was indicted in court Monday, and is now in Doylestown jail awaiting sentence.

COUNTY FIRE MARSHAL ES TIMATES THAT OVER 50 PER CENT OF LAST SEVEN TY-EIGHT BARN FIRES IN BUCKS CO. HAVE BEEN S TARTED BY AN INCENDIARY

MUCH CATTLE LOST

Bucks Has Best Record in The State for Convictions for Arson, However

By A. Russell Thomas

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 21.—Seeking thrills and excitement and a desire to satisfy an uncanny craving to see flames leap high in the air and hear fire sirens sound in the dead of night, "firebugs" during the past 15 months are charged with starting more than 50 per cent of the 78 barn fires that occurred in Bucks County.

Although Bucks County has the best record in the entire State of Pennsylvania for convicting persons charged with arson, 78 barn fires in so short a space of time has aroused the countryside.

Prison sentences of 10 to 20 years handed out by the judges of the county have helped some, but in spite of that the loss by barn fires alone has been close to $500,000, while the property endangered will reach close to three-quarters of a million dollars. About $400,000 was covered by insurance, so that farmers of the county suffered an actual loss of about $100,000 in 15 months.

County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, of Hulmeville, an active volunteer fireman himself, estimated that over 50 per cent of the last 78 fires were of incendiary origin.

The death toll of this terrible loss included no human lives, but 240 head of livestock were burned to death, including many head of valuable dairy cattle.

Losses, as a result of the barn fires would have been still larger had it not been for efficient fire department organizations in Bucks County, composed of nearly 5,000 volunteers, many of whom arrived at the scene of incendiary fires before the barns were in danger of complete destruction.

What kind of people are fire-bugs? "Fire-bugs like excitement," declared Fire Marshal Stackhouse, in discussing the Bucks County fire losses. "Very little spite work has been noticed in our many investigations throughout Bucks County. The average tramp or hobo, in only one or two cases in recent years, was responsible for barn fires. It is usually an accident when a tramp starts a fire, due sometimes to carelessness in lighting an old pipe or a cigar stump. Tramps are not responsible for as many fires as the public thinks.

"Boys are intentionally responsible for a number of fires, we find. A number of boys under nine years of age have caused fires while playing with matches. Some older boys set fire to places to see firemen fighting the flames."

Fire Marshal Stackhouse has an interesting scrap book of confessions made to him by "fire-bugs" in Bucks County in recent years.

REV. HOWELL PERFORMS LYNN-SIMONS WEDDING

Edgely Resident Takes Bristol
Girl As Bride; Reception Occurs

NOW ON HONEYMOON

The Bristol M. E. Church was the scene of a wedding last evening at six o'clock, when Miss Helen Irene Simons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Simons, 229 Wood street, and John S. Lynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo L. Lynn, Edgely, were married by the Rev. Clarence Howell.

Miss Margaret Simons, sister of the bride, was maid of honor; and the bridesmaids were Miss Hazel R. Lynn, sister of the groom, and Miss Helen M. Taylor, Bath street. Frank H. Lynn, was his brother's best man; and the ushers included William Johns, Plainfield, N. J.; William Thompson, Radcliffe street, cousins of the bride, and Henry Reichert, Holmesburg.

Miss Carrie Rapp, New Buckley street, sang two solos, "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly," accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Alfred Rodgers, who also played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party entered the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white bridal satin made on princess lines, the train extending from the skirt. The lace yoke was finished with a round neck-line, and the lace leg-mound sleeves were trimmed with satin buttons. She wore white moire slippers, and her veil of white net was arranged in a cap and held in place with orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a shower of white roses.

Miss Margaret Simons was attractive in a gown of pale blue corded taffeta, fashioned on long close fitting lines and V-shape neckline front and back. The gown was sleeveless with wide pleated ruffles around the arm.

One 38-year-old World War veteran of Polish descent, confessed in 1931 to setting fire to two barns in Bensalem Township and causing $30,000 damage. In the confession he told the State police and fire marshal that he did it so that he could go to the fires with the girl that he loved. The girl's father had forbidden him to call at the home and the veteran, who was gassed in the war, knew that the girl would go to the fires and he could see her there. He was sentenced to 20 to 40 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

In another confession, Charles Theodore Preston admitted burning down a barn of a former employer "to get even with him for scolding me." Preston tossed a gallon of kerosene into the barn and lighted it. He

REAL ESTATE AGENT GOES ON TRIAL FOR BURNING OFFICE

Walter A. Hilsbos Charged
With Firing a Building at Parkland

FOUND 2 CONTAINERS

Cans, Grey Felt Hat, Overcoat
Produced by The Commonwealth

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 21.—It is expected that Walter A. Hilsbos, now on trial here charged with firing a building, not a parcel of a dwelling house, will take the witness stand this morning.

The first witness called in this case was County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse. He said the defendant, owned a real estate office on the Lincoln Highway near Parkland. He said he arrived there about 3.40 on the morning of May 17th. Before his arrival two fire companies from Langhorne and South Langhorne were already there. He described the smoke as very heavy but light in color.

Upon investigating the fire, the witness stated he found two 5-gallon square tin cans. These cans, together with a grey felt hat and overcoat, were produced by the Commonwealth yesterday as exhibits.

The fire marshal stated Hilsbos suffered burns on the back part of the head, and both his ears were scorched. On his overcoat were burns on the back, across the shoulders and arms.

The insurance on the building amounted to $350 and on the contents the insurance was $100.

Another witness, Charles Mondelli, a hosiery worker and a member of the South Langhorne Fire Department was one of the firemen to arrive on the scene. He stated when he arrived at the scene the flames were coming out of the door. He identified the hat as belonging to Hilsbos.

Corporal Joseph Wommer, member of the State Police now stationed at Reading, but stationed at Morrisville at the time of the fire, said Hilsbos walked into his office and told him he wanted to place a sign in the window "post no bills" and that he struck a match to see where to place the sign and an explosion took place, hurling him out of the door.

Felix R. Gowen, member of the State Highway Patrol, special investigator, stated that Hilsbos at first denied there was any insurance on the building but later admitted that there was insurance on the building and that the policy was to lapse within the next day.

GAMBLING SHIP MURDER

Long Beach, Calif., Sept. 21.—A mysterious gambling ship murder on the high seas early today while roulette wheels clicked and revelry was at its height, caused Federal authorities to detain 200 men and women, many clad in evening clothes, on the notorious vessel "Johanna Smith." Norman Lorraine, 22, Baltimore, Maryland, a seaman, was found fatally shot on the upper deck, the third recent murder on gambling ships here and the second on the Johanna Smith. Police found a loaded pistol on him. He had been shot four times and died without naming his assailant. "No one will be allowed to go ashore until we have questioned everyone," declared assistant chief of police C. Peterson, of Long Beach. Peterson admitted the possibility that numerous movie celebrities were on board the ship. Coast guard cutters surrounded the vessel to prevent any one from leaving in small boats under cover of the pea-soup fog which blanketed the ocean along "gambling ship row."

TO CLEAN UP MILK SITUATION

Harrisburg, Sept. 21.—Revived after several months' inactivity, the joint legislative Milk Investigating Committee today planned a hearing within the next ten days to clean up the chaotic milk situation in eastern Pennsylvania.

Armed with the power of subpoena, the committee has thrown its efforts behind the power of Federal authorities desirous of obtaining possession of books and records of eastern Pennsylvania milk distributors especially those in the Philadelphia Milkshed.

"The purpose of the investigation is to find out the profits made by the distributors and the reason for paid by the producers and that paid by consumers," Senator Clarence J. Buckman, Bucks County, committee chairman, asserted.

"The code suggested for approval by the United States Government, has been promulgated by distributors and their intermediaries, but the committee purports to fix the price to be paid farmers and fix the price to be paid by consumers without any investigation of the profits made by the distributors."

While the primary purpose of the investigation is to obtain information for the drafting of legislation, Senator Buckman pledged the committee's support to Federal authorities who are attempting to draft a satisfactory milk code.

FORECLOSURE TO RESULT IN MORRISVILLE CASES

Unless the Property Owners
Pay Their Street
Assessments

MANY ARE VERY LAX

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 21.—The property owners here, who have been lax in their street assessments are to face foreclosure, it is announced, unless the said accounts are paid.

Morrisville council so decided at a business session last evening. It is said that many of the owners are nearly two years in arrears.

Monthly report of the police department showed there was 13 arrests in the borough during the last month. Fines totaling $165 were collected. Many of these were from penalties imposed for overloading motor trucks. It was decided also to purchase new uniforms for the police force.

Councilman Young and Councilman Allen reported that complaints had come to them frequently concerning the growth of weeds on a number of properties. These were referred to the police.

Because of the dangerous condition on Trenton avenue near the Calhoun street bridge, council decided to erect a special "danger" sign at the bridge entrance.

Bids will be advertised for the removal of an old stand-pipe on Crown street.

Councilman Young recommended special treatment for the macadam streets be considered this Fall. He said many of the streets were in need of repairs and contended that postponement of the work would mean an increased cost in the future.

Council agreed to the replacement of the bridge leading to the island in the Delaware. The span was damaged during the recent storm.

OFFICIAL BALLOT COUNT TO BEGIN TOMORROW

County Commissioners Will Then Make An Official
Tabulation

SOME ELECTION RESULTS

In the unofficial election returns published yesterday in the Courier and which were hastily compiled, some errors were inadvertently made.

Errors were made in tabulating the vote in Bristol Township, west district. The corrected returns are: Justice of Peace, George N. Distler, 181; James Laughlin, 299; school director, Robert R. Pearson, 251; Ira C. Brown, 229; James Robinson, 190.

In the vote cast for tax collector, John Moyer received two more votes than reported in the Courier's tabulation. His vote in the district was 22, instead of 20. Thomas Crawford received 20 more than reported, his vote being 95 instead of 75.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 21.—Official count of the primary election vote of Bucks county will take place tomorrow noon at the office of the County Commissioners and not until that time will the count be known.

No official returns were tabulated by Republican or Democratic headquarters election night because of the fact there were no contests on the county ticket, and for that reason no night headquarters were maintained as in other years.

Those nominated on the county tickets are as follows:

District Attorney, Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown, Rep.; Webster S. Achey, Mechanics Valley, Dem.

Prothonotary, Oscar P. Wiggins, Upper Makefield township, Rep.; Frederick S. Erdman, Quakertown, Dem.

Director of the Poor, Winston W. Linder, Milford township, Rep.; Thomas J. Brennan, South Langhorne, Dem.

Jury Commissioner, Dr. William C. LeCompte, Bristol, Rep.; Kenward S. Ahlum, Doylestown, Dem.

Doylestown borough's fight for tax collector nomination on the Republican ticket did not prove to be such a close battle after all, Robert W. Robinson, winning with 357 votes, while William K. Fryling polled 246 and Samuel Barlow, 68.

Paul D. Fretz and Francis D. Heyder won the nomination for Justice of the Peace in Perkasio on the Republican ticket, defeating Arthur F. Peters. The contest for Council in Perkasio Third Ward was won by H. M. Kramer with 59 votes, and L. A. Pritchard with 46 votes, over William Patton, who polled 18 votes.

In Chalfont Borough, Howard W. Krupp won the Republican nomination for tax collector, defeating Charles Kober.

One contest in Newtown resulted in the nomination of Henry Afferbach over Joseph Gumpfer for the office of Burgess on the Republican ticket. In Northampton township, Chalkley Butcher won the tax collector nomination over Mrs. Roberts on the Republican ticket.

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Courier:
I wish to advise the voters of the Fourth Ward that I am not a candidate for borough council on either the Republican or Democratic tickets.

At the Primary election held Tuesday, someone, without my knowledge, wrote my name upon the Republican ballot. This was the only vote given for Republican councilman in the ward and consequently it gives me the nomination.

It is my intention to notify the Bucks County Commissioners that I desire to have my name withdrawn.

PAUL BARRETT.

Joseph Foster received the Democratic nomination in the fourth ward and Dennis Roche received both the Democratic and Republican nominations.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—(INS)—State police today broke up a barricade thrown up by striking truck drivers on the Lincoln Highway near Langhorne, and on the Bristol Pike, near Bristol, as a result of which both inbound and outbound trucks between Philadelphia, New York and New Jersey, were forced to turn back.

Numerous fist-fights broke out as a crowd of about 35 pickets halted the trucks, forcing some into ditches, and turning others around, so that the roadway was blocked.

One of the trucks was almost overturned, and its cargo of baled waste-paper was strewn over the road.

Two state highway patrolmen sped to the scene from South Langhorne barracks, rounded up the strikers and ordered them to return to Philadelphia, and opened the lane to traffic.

Additional troopers were sent to the scene as reinforcements. The road barricade was thrown up by striking drivers, and superintendent of police, Joseph LeStrange, Philadelphia, delivered an ultimatum to Frank McGlone, head of their newly-formed union, threatening police intervention unless the trucks were allowed to move freely today, without violence. City police were powerless to interfere at Langhorne and Bristol, and state authorities were notified.

Despite LeStrange's assurance to the truck operators that their trucks could operate with safety, most continued today to hold their trucks idle, because of lack of confidence in the ability of both police and McGlone to hold the rank and file of strikers in check.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—(INS)—Violence was feared today as operators prepared to resume their trucking operations under an ultimatum banning violence issued by superintendent of police Joseph LeStrange to Frank P. McGlone, organizer of the truck drivers' strike.

McGlone agreed to co-operate with LeStrange in the effort to move about $75,000,000 worth of merchandise tied up by the strike but truck operators expressed the fear the union organizer could not hold his men in check.

Under the ultimatum laid down by LeStrange at a conference with McGlone and a committee, the trucking business must be allowed to proceed in an orderly fashion, although picketing will be permitted. LeStrange warned that any violence will result in police intervention for the protection of drivers and property.

Charles D. Barnes, Federal mediator, continued his conferences with strikers and operators. He said more than 200 telegrams from operators and manufacturers had been received at Washington, expressing fear for goods in transit, and that at one time he had asked state police for protection.

"Jennie Gerhardt," Dreiser Novel, Makes Great Film

"Jennie Gerhardt" was the most talked-of woman in American fiction.

Now this tragic figure of American womanhood comes to vivid life in an amazing portrayal by Sylvia Sydney. The picturization of the sensational Theodore Dreiser novel opens at the Grand Theatre tonight.

"Jennie Gerhardt" is the first picture in which Miss Sydney achieves the goal of all film players, star billing, and her splendid performance in the title role undoubtedly won for her this right. Her sad, wistful manner is genuinely a part of the character itself, bringing to it all that Deriser might ever have intended.

Jennie Gerhardt, in case you've forgotten, stands, as a character, for the hopes and despair, loves and sacrifices of all womanhood. She is a beautiful, sensitive girl, raised in poverty. It is her family's poverty that is responsible for her inability to refuse the favors of those who might help solve their financial problems. A child is born to her. But again it is her family's need that forces her into another like situation.

This time it is with wealthy Lester Kane, played by Donald Cook, whom she learns to love. They live together for years, but when Jennie realizes he is robbing himself of the possibility of success in his own world, she leaves him, sacrificing herself now that her family no longer needs her. It is an overpowering story of a girl driven through desperation to an inescapable end.

MOUNTAINS OF DEBT

Chicago's plight is due to her inability during the last three years to collect taxes on real estate with an aggregate valuation running into the hundreds of millions. The city government is collecting but a fraction of the revenue needed to meet its expenses.

The bottom fell out of real estate prices in New York City, placing that metropolis in the same predicament. It, like so many other communities, obligated itself to live up to its inflated income of the prosperity period.

A billion dollars in miscellaneous taxes is owed the Federal Government, which is seeking ways and means of collecting as much as possible of that vast sum. Compared with that, squeezing blood from a stone would be comparatively easy.

The story can be repeated in virtually every state, county, city, town, township and parish in the country. A few can meet their obligations. Most are hopelessly in debt. Why?

Because the government like most individuals thought prosperity would go on forever with next year's income ever exceeding that of last year. Governments lived up to their means and beyond and when the crash came and public revenues fell off with private incomes their living expenses and the interest on their debts exceeded their incomes. Wise but rare was the public administrator who took into account the possibility of lower property values and fewer tax dollars some time in the future.

OCEAN AIR MAIL SUBSIDY

Colonel Lindbergh has predicted a regular trans-Atlantic air-mail service within two years, but if he is counting heavily on a large subsidy from Washington, which has been generous to a fault in the past, he is in a fair way to find disappointment.

E. R. White, who is in charge of foreign mail, speaks up for the government on this subject. His words indicate a marked change of heart, due no doubt to necessity. A trans-oceanic air-mail route is a luxury the country cannot afford at this time unless it can be made to pay its own way.

He recalls that the government a few years ago went so far as to advertise for bids for such a service. Today it wishes it were obligated to pay fewer subsidies of this nature. Not that the government is not interested in developing the air mail. It just doesn't have the money.

Perhaps Lindbergh knows this and is working with the understanding that private capital is available to establish the proposed route and maintain it until it becomes self-supporting. There is a demand for a fast air-mail service between New York and London but is that demand large enough to make such a service profitable? It takes a lot of postage stamps to buy gasoline for a big ocean-going airplane.

SYNOPSIS

Thomas Jefferson Randolph... now a great football prospect at famous Thorndyke University... was born of humble parents, Mom and Pop, in a little Middle West factory town where he won early renown as a brilliant high school back, so much so that the great eastern college had lured him to its swanky halls. Tommy came home for Christmas, spent much of the time trying to polish household manners, did not return Easter, but during his summer vacation he caused a most profound sensation throughout critical Athens by flashing on that burg the very latest in sport togs, white knickers, flannels, et al. The neighbors are rather caustic but, as Mom explains it, "if you fly with fine birds you must wear fine feathers" referring to her boy's "millionaire college chums"...

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Mrs. Farrell sniffed. She picked up her basket and started out. Mom said: "And it's much better for Tommy to be playing the golf with his school chums than it is to be loafing at the pool room like most of the boys round here."

Mrs. Farrell turned quickly. "If it's my Jule you're hinting about you can just change your tune, Miss Randolph; my Jule is working at an honest job instead of wearing dummies in public."

"Why Miss Farrell! Mom started to say more; but the irate Mrs. Farrell spoke again: "And as far as those millionaires is concerned I always say it's better to go around with the devil you know than the devil you don't know."

Then she walked out, swishing her skirts. Mom had not been prepared for such a show of temper.

"Never mind her," Mrs. Johnson consoled, "she's just jealous."

"Sure," Mrs. Flannigan added, "some people are that way. But I always say if everybody minded their own business they'd have enough to do. And if your Tommy wants to make a fashion plate out of himself that's nobody's business but his own."

Mom nodded. "People don't take to dressin' around here like they do over east," she said. "They even give prizes to the best-dressed boy in the school."

"My land!" Mrs. Flannigan gasped, "just imagine!"

Tommy's clothes attracted more attention in the town than since Loretto Grenato had run off with a show company and come back a year later to establish a profound influence upon junior feminine styles for many years to come. His was not the first white one but it was the first to appear almost continuously in this garb. Furthermore, others of the young bloods, including some who did not go to college, also began to wear them although none of theirs had the flair of Tommy's, as they were mostly the short pants which came extra with sport suits.

It wasn't just knickers, either; for the first Sunday evening he was at home Tommy made his appearance in cream flannels and a blue coat, just like the musical comedy actors wore when they used to come to the Elysium Theatre before it had been turned into a movie house. And it wasn't just the clothes he wore but the manner in which he wore them, as if there were nothing unusual about such garb and that all who did not wear them were behind the times.

"He was cut out for an actor," Mrs. Johnson told her husband.

"He was cut out for a bum," the somewhat subdued Mr. Johnson corrected. It was like Mrs. Johnson always said, her husband didn't talk much but he thought a lot.

Tommy had made the town clothes-conscious without half-trying; but if the subject was met throughout the town in general it was almost critical within the Randolph household. Pop looked agitated when he had last seen Tommy in his sport regalia; but before he could say anything Uncle Louie had so plainly indicated that he thought that Pop had immediately gone over to Tommy's side.

Uncle Louie was growing sour. As time had come for Tommy's return Mom had begun to hint that Uncle Louie go back to his hotel, which was hard for her to do because she knew he didn't have much money; in fact he owed a big bill at the hotel. Uncle Louie had let it be known that he would consider sharing his room with Tommy but Mom knew that would never do; then she had dropped a hint to Pete but Pete had shaken his head very firmly.

Anyhow Pete needed his rest and Uncle Louie not only snored but had to get up at night to drink hot water whenever his stomach bothered him; and Pete was also working at the garage a few hours each day and when he did get to bed after his two jobs he couldn't be bothered by Uncle Louie. Then Uncle Louie played his last card; since Pop and Pete worked on different shifts he would be willing to sleep in Pete's bed one week and on the couch in the front room the other; but Pop stepped on this in a hurry.

Sorrowfully, feeling as if she had turned out one of God's angels in disguise, Mom watched Uncle Louie go; she half-expected him back but they took him in at the hotel again, which wouldn't hurt them because they weren't half-filled anyhow; and if Al Smith got in and Uncle Louie got the postmaster's job he would pay in full for he was honest as the day was long whenever he had the money to pay.

But he was back for meals most of the time and he was there when Tommy first came in with the white knickers; he was ill-tempered anyhow because it happened to be Thursday night and that was the night Pop shaved and Mom always held supper up because she believed that the head of the house should always be at the table when the vittles were served hot and Pop believed so, too. The boys always respected this custom and Mom saw no reason why Uncle Louie couldn't wait a half-hour being as he had done nothing but wait all day anyhow and had nothing else to do. In fact Uncle Louie had spent most of his life waiting for something. He would never take a job like anybody else—it was a big job or nothing for Uncle Louie.

So Uncle Louie was waiting near the table, when Mom had set in the first night Tommy was home, when Tommy came in.

"Dinner not ready?" "It's ready but the king isn't," Uncle Louie said tartly. "Anyhow it's supper where I come from. What kind of a monkey suit is that?"

Tommy looked at him kind of cold as if he were an insect. Pop's eyes liked to have popped out when he saw Tommy but before he could say anything Mom said quickly: "Everybody get ready to sit down."

Uncle Louie hurried to his seat; Tommy looked at him and Mom was afraid he was going to say something because Uncle Louie had Tommy's seat; but she looked at Tommy so he wouldn't make trouble and said:

"Here, Tommy, sit in Pete's seat."

Tommy did; and Pop came in, wearing a fresh blue shirt and looking clean and handsome like he always did whenever he shaved. He looked at Uncle Louie and said: "What's the matter with that suit?"

Uncle Louie laughed very nasty and said: "Everybody in town's talking about him. He's disgracing us."

Mom almost dropped the hot gravy bowl before she got it on the table. Tommy was drawing back from the table with those narrow eyes again; but before he could do anything Pop pounded his fist on the table so that the dishes rattled and the gravy almost pitched over the side of the dish.

"Everybody in town's been talking about them white ties of yours for forty years," Pop shouted, "and if we ain't disgraced by them we never will be."

Uncle Louie laughed sarcastic. "You should talk—with them blue shirts and running around in your socks—I suppose nobody ever talked about you."

"Here," Mom said to Pop, "be still, all of you, and have some of this grub before it gets cold."

But Pop wasn't through. Very pointedly he said, glaring at Uncle Louie: "Well, there ain't any laws forcing you to look at anything 'round here."

Quickly, Uncle Louie pushed back his chair and arose. Mom shook her head and couldn't think of anything to say. Uncle Louie shouted: "I don't have to be insulted like that by anybody. I know when I'm not wanted."

He reached for his hat, which he always had a habit of putting right under his chair, and started to walk out. He walked kind of slow; then Mom thought of something to say: "Uncle Louie, you're not going without your supper."

"Somebody's got to apologize before I come back," he stated stoutly. "I ain't used to being treated like that." He looked at Pop. Mom looked at Pop. Pop reached for the potatoes.

"You'll wait till hell freezes over," he said. Uncle Louie marched out. Mom looked at Tommy. He was smiling.

"Attaboy, Father," he said. Pop looked up at him, smiling a little, as if they had an understanding. Mom was glad of it, even if poor Uncle Louie had to go without his supper but she would save a little food and he would probably come back after they had all gone out.

Pop was a little puzzled, though, how to take the Father. Mom knew how he felt because it had taken her kind of sudden-like when Tommy had begun to call her Mother. It was strange but it was nice, too, and sounded very aristocratic. She could see that Pop liked it too, although he would never admit it.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, often often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't take liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name N. B. C. Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Tells How She Lost 15-lbs. of FAT

Rheumatism Gone Too

Here is a woman who was rapidly putting on weight and who was troubled with rheumatism too. Read her letter:

"I started taking Kruschen Salts because of the good it had done for a friend of mine who had been crippled with rheumatism. At the end of the second bottle I was weighed and find I am now only 148 pounds (original weight 163 lbs.), at which I am so pleased. But I have also felt my rheumatism much less, which has been so troublesome in my knees. I must say I think Kruschen a splendid weight reducer." (Miss) E. L. P.

Overweight and rheumatic poisoning often go together. The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to perform their functions properly—little by little that ugly fat goes; slowly, yes—but surely. You feel wonderfully healthy, youthful and energetic—more so than ever before in your life!

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all drug stores—a jar lasts four weeks and costs not more than 85c.—(Adv.)

WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT IN FULL SWING TODAY

The women's tennis tournament which moved at such a lively pace on Tuesday slowed down yesterday when only one match was played. "Peggie" Pope met Elizabeth Scott in a spectacular match and won by the score 6-2, 6-3. Today, however, the tournament got into full swing again and matches have been going on all day.

The semi-final doubles matches in the men's tournament between Lawrence-Fine and Morris-Rathke in the first bracket and Pearson-Pearson and McArthur-Foell in the second bracket, resulted in a victory for Lawrence-Fine by the score 6-1, 6-3; and Pearson-Pearson 6-1, 6-3. Lawrence-Fine and Pearson-Pearson will meet in the finals match on Sunday afternoon on the Elks' Courts.

Regarding the prizes for the winners in the singles contest, the sum of $10 was raised through entrance fees. The sponsors gave the winner and the runner-up the choice of what they desired for prizes. The money was divided so that the winner would have seven dollars and the runner-up three dollars. Herb Lawrence who won the tournament decided that his money should be spent for a racket frame and Franklin Fine decided that the amount due him should be used to string his racket. Accordingly the sponsors will use the money as suggested by the winner and runner-up.

ANNOUNCE ALL-STAR TEAM FOR LOWER BUCKS

The Lower Bucks County All-Star team was announced by President Dave Landreth last night. This nine will play the Bristol Twilight League All-Stars Sunday afternoon on St. Ann's field. The team was picked by the managers of the clubs of the circuit and the voting was very close. Dougherty, of the Hibernians, and Rockhill, of the Hulmeville team, were the only players to receive the vote of every manager of the circuit.

The team is as follows: Pitchers, Watson, Hulmeville; Holland, Parkland; Black, Hulmeville; catchers, Afflerbach, Odd Fellows; Adams, Parkland; infielders, Foster, Hibernians; Gotwald, Parkland; Rockhill, Hulmeville; Dougherty, Hibernians; outfielders, Barrett, Bristol A. A.; Bilger, Hulmeville; Roe and Hines, Hibernians.

Afflerbach, picked as first string catcher, received the votes of five of the managers, as did Bilger, an outfielder for Hulmeville. Foster, Barrett and Gotwald received four tickets each, while Hines and Roe had three each. Watson and Holland were tied with four votes each, while Black received three. Watson also received four votes as the utility outfielder, while Harrison, of Hulmeville, was picked for utility infielder.

It is hoped that every one of the above mentioned players will be present in time for the opening pitch on St. Ann's field, Sunday. The receipts of the game will go to the treasury of both leagues.

All managers of the Bristol Twilight League teams are requested to get in touch with Secretary Thomas Juno and present their line-up as soon as possible.

The fans of Bristol and vicinity are anxiously waiting for the week-end to test the supremacy of the two leagues. On Saturday the Bristol Twilight League champions, St. Ann's A. A., will play the Hulmeville team, winners of the Lower Bucks County League championship.

supervisor, George Matthews won out with 356 votes. James Iden Smith received but 19 votes in the entire township. Others who lost included Willis Worthington and W. Johnson Worthington.

The Hilltown Taxpayers' Association received several jolts at the primaries. Candidates endorsed by that association lost out to the regular old guard Republicans by an average of about 100 votes. Henry K. Fretz and Titus K. Moyer, organization Republicans were nominated for school directors over James Bishop and William M. Seidel.

By a vote of 44 to 18, William Y. Leedom defeated Harvey W. Raab for the Republican nomination of tax collector in Ivyland.

In New Britain Borough, B. H. Stevens won the Republican nomination for tax collector over Walter Kraft by a vote of nearly two to one. In the school board fight in the same district on the Republican ticket, B. Casper Lauer, Sr., was defeated and Mrs. Nellie Royahn, E. H. Burkhardt, Jr., and Miss Blanche Cope were nominated.

There were five candidates for the nomination of tax collector in New Britain township on the Republican ticket, and George A. Moll, of Chalfont, won out, with a majority of 72 votes. Artemus Bishop, Republican candidate for supervisor, defeated Reuben A. Martin, by 28 votes.

In Quakertown, Robert Elchner, Democrat, in the Third Ward, defeated W. W. Benner for Council nomination. In the Burgess fight, Victor A. Smith, present Democratic incumbent, was nominated over Arlington Fluck, while the successful Republican candidate for Burgess was Francis E. Rantz who beat Robert D. Landis. For Justice of the Peace on the Democratic ticket, Benjamin H. Himmelwright was high candidate.

NEW HOPE, Sept. 21.—Some unusual features were noted in the primary elections here Tuesday. For the first time in the history of New Hope the Democratic party presented a full ticket.

Dr. John A. Flood, who upset established custom by giving the town a Democratic Burgess at the election three years ago, declined to run for that office again in spite of efforts of his friends to have him do so. In his place, the Democrats nominated Dr. Roscoe C. Magill, formerly a Republican and the man whom Flood defeated to win his position.

Other Democratic nominees are: For members of the borough council, Edward E. Bair, Sr., George Cathers, Harry Scott and Arthur Tettemer; members of the school board for six years, Mrs. Rose Flood and Francis Mathews, and for two years, Roy A. Large; judge of elections, George Corrigan, Sr.; tax collector, Carlen Kooker; auditor, Welding Slack; inspector, Edward Bair, Jr. There were no contests on the Democratic ticket.

Heading the Republican ticket is James T. Skillman, for Burgess; for council, P. R. Whiteley, Howard Davis, Watson Jenney and William Lewis; school directors, Walter Bair and Alfred Worthington for the full term, and Roy A. Large, who is also nominated on the Democratic ticket, for the unexpired term; judge of election, James McKeown; tax collector, Fred Oblinger; auditor, Bernard McDonnell; inspector of elections, George Ashton, Jr. This last named office was the only contested one on either ticket, he defeating John Smith.

County Fire Marshal Estimates Fifty Percent Of Fires Are of Incendiary Origin

then watched the building burn and discussed the fire the next day with a group of boys.

Suspected for 30 years of being a "fire-bug," Frank Cornell, 72, confessed in 1930 to a number of fires in Solebury Township resulting in losses of over $15,000.

"I liked to see fire and smoke," Cornell told police. "I was not sore at any one, I just could not help it," he said.

In 1931, Albert Antosh, 23, of Morrisville, set fire to a barn on the William H. Munn Company farm, confessing that "he did it because he had a grudge against his boss, who would not change his job. The same youth confessed to another fire, telling Fire Marshal Stackhouse that he did it

"because I wanted to ride the fire engine to the fire for excitement."

In another case two Morrisville men conspired to burn down a house to collect insurance money.

"I would like to see the local fire companies in action," another "fire-bug" now serving a long prison term, told police after two Bensalem Township barns had been burned several years ago. "My father-in-law goes to all the fires that he can in Philadelphia, and I pointed out a Bucks County barn to him and promised him action if he set it on fire."

The geographical location of Bucks County, authorities believe, is responsible for a number of incendiary fires in the district. Many people move to the country from nearby cities, and among them are to be found types of individuals who would not hesitate to start fires.

Just a week ago, a Bucks County youth, John Pidcock, 18, of Newtown, was sentenced to 10 to 20 years after he had set fire to a barn and a large garage in Newtown.

"Things were slow and I wanted to see some excitement," Pidcock told the Court.

Several days ago another Bucks County man was before the grand jury for indictment on an arson charge and next week he will face a trial jury and judge.

In Bristol some time ago a group of colored boys confessed to starting 17 fires. They were committed to institutions for proper care.

"Sex weakness is at the bottom of much of the trouble of the pyromaniac," Fire Marshal Stackhouse believes. "Many of those arrested for arson and later convicted are found to be perverts whose desires are satisfied by starting fires."

"Arson is the most difficult criminal charge on which to convict. It is even more difficult than murder. In a murder case a physician or some other expert can be called to testify whether the person died a natural death or was murdered. In the case of arson, expert testimony is rare."

But in spite of the difficulty to convict, Bucks County has a fine record. During the past eight years that District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn has been in charge of prosecution, there have been 29 arson convictions, while over a period of 10 years that Fire Marshal Stackhouse has been active there have been close to 50 arson convictions.

The increase in barn fires in Bucks County has resulted in increased insurance rates among the mutual companies and at the present time some companies are turning down barn risks.

Fire Marshal Stackhouse also urges that more farmers build fire dams and reservoirs for better protection.

Bucks County's fire marshal was elected 14 years ago by the Bucks County Firemen's Association. He is the only paid fire marshal in the State outside the large cities. There is no State law that provides for the pay of a fire marshal, so four years ago, Stackhouse was made a deputy sheriff of the county and in that way is paid a flat salary by the county commissioners. For a number of years, however, he traveled hundreds of miles and investigated scores of fires without a cent of pay.

Farmers of Bucks County are better organized than ever to prevent fire losses. Many barns are lighted up at night, and farm houses are few and far between that do not have a miniature arsenal within, ready for action in case of suspicious characters seen loitering about the place at night.

"In most of the confessions we obtain," Fire Marshal Stackhouse declared, "the fire-bug tells us that it takes but about 15 minutes for the fire to be seen by neighbors after it has been started. The person setting the fire usually returns to the scene of the fire and often assists the firemen in fighting the flames."

James E. Groom, of Yardley, president of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, in discussing the fire losses in the county, recently said:
